Mr. Shull's inspection revealed only a small area (three feet in diameter) of disturbed ground, but no evidence of burning. Ms. Rivers and Mr. Shull discussed the open burning exemption for residential refuse of four units or less, but since their complex consisted of ten units the exemption did not apply. Comments The reported party was unaware if improper material had been burned. The reported party indicated that neither he nor his son has added any material other than wood to the furnace. If the complaint was caused by the addition of improper wastes to the furnace, the reported party suspected one of the renters may have been adding non permitted material to the fire. The renters may add fuel as needed to keep the shop warm. The reported party stated he would speak with the renters to insure only approved wood and wood waste was placed into the furnace.
